The real Swaraj will come not by the acquisition of authority by a few, but by the acquisition of capacity by all to resist authority when abused.

- MAHATMA GANDHI

“I believe that the passage of this Bill will see the dawn of a new era in our processes of governance, an era of performance and efficiency, an era which will ensure that benefits of growth flow to all sections of our people, an era which will eliminate the scourge of corruption, an era which will bring the common man’s concern to the heart of all processes of governance, an era which will truly fulfill the hopes of the founding fathers of our Republic”.

Dr. MANMOHAN SINGH,
Prime Minister of India,
Speech in Parliament on May 11, 2005

RTI Act is a big step forward in our march into a bright future for our nation – promising really transparent, vibrant and accountable governments. The shackles of confidentiality which were holding back information, confounding ignorance for all these years have to be dismantled. The advent of this legislation would give place to an open era and pave way to achieve a truly democratic Republic.

Shri RAMESHWAR THAKUR
Governor of Andhra Pradesh

For me Transparency and Accountability are essential pre-requisites of Good Governance and for a democracy to be true and meaningful, it has to have the foundation of an informed, enlightened and empowered citizenry. For achieving these objectives, Right to Information can be an important instrumentality. I appeal to one and all to maximize their efforts for a smooth, efficient and effective implementation of this important legislation.

DR. Y.S. RAJASEKHARA REDDY
Chief Minister of Andhra Pradesh

CHAPTER - I

THE RIGHT TO INFORMATION: FROM PEOPLE'S MOVEMENT TO LEGISLATION

"...Democracy requires an informed citizenry and transparency of information which are vital to its functioning and also to contain corruption and to hold Governments and their instrumentalities accountable to the governed"

(Preamble, RTI Act 2005)

1. Introduction

1.1 The main objective of the Right to Information Act, 2005 is to promote transparency and accountability in the working of every Public Authority in the country and eliminate the scourge of corruption. The Act mandates a legal-institutional framework for setting out a practical regime of right to information for every citizen to secure access to information held by or under the control of Public Authorities. It prescribes mandatory disclosure of certain information to citizens and designation of State Public Information Officers in all Public Authorities to attend to requests from citizens for information which will have to be supplied within the stipulated time. It provides for appeal to designated appellate officers against the decisions of Public Information Officers in case the information sought for has not been supplied. It also mandates the constitution of a Central Information Commission and State Information Commissions to enquire into complaints, hear second appeals, and be the watch dog on the implementation of the Act.

1.2 To provide right to information leading to an informed enlightened and empowered citizenry, Govt. decision making process will have to be in the public domain, and thereby provide deeper roots for a democratic, open and participatory governance.

1.3 The importance given to the freedom of information is globally accepted, and was reflected in First United Nations General Assembly, which in 1946, adopted Resolution 59(1), as follows:

“Freedom of Information is a Fundamental Human Right and the touchstone of all the freedoms to which the United Nations is consecrated”

1.4 Further, UN General Assembly resolution 217(III) A of 1948 further reiterated that;

“Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers.”

1.5 Most of the democratic societies all over the world have incorporated this right in their respective legal systems.

1.6 Even in the Indian perspective, Article 19(Chapter-III) of the Constitution of India guarantees to all its citizens, among other things Fundamental Right to Freedom of Speech and Expression. The Right to Information as a Fundamental Right flowing out from Article 19(1)(a) of the Constitution, is now well settled and an accepted fact. Over the years, the Supreme Court has constantly ruled in favour of the Citizens' right to know.

CHAPTER – II

EVOLUTION OF RIGHT TO INFORMATION

Evolution of RTI Act, 2005 in India

2.1 The first draft of the Right to Information Bill was presented to Parliament on 22 December 2004. The Act covers the whole of India except Jammu and Kashmir. It is applicable to all Constitutional Authorities, including the Executive, Legislature and Judiciary and includes any institution or body established or constituted by an Act of Parliament or a State Legislature or by order or notification of appropriate Government. High Level Committee Meetings in the Chambers of Chief Secretary were also held on 11.10.2006 and 17.01.2007 to take stock of the implementation of the Act and identify such of the Departments where progress is unsatisfactory. It also conducted a meeting with all the Heads of Departments at the Jubilee Hall on 12.02.2007 and sensitized them on the various aspects of RTI Act implementation.
- d) On 30-1-2006 the Commission participated in the Collectors' Conference where the Chief Minister, most of the Cabinet Ministers and all the Secretaries / Heads of Departments were present and explained to them the importance and implications of the Act and the need to take time bound action under different sections of the Act.

Officers / Asst. Information Officers / Appellate Authorities were also in attendance. These have gone a long way to sensitize the administration at grass root level about Right to Information and its implementation. All these meetings were open for the media, both i.e., visual and print. 4.14 Particulars of disciplinary action taken by the Commission

Taking due cognizance of the fact that this is a new legislation and there will always be teething problems at a nascent stage, and a certain period had to be provided for the “learning curve”, in the first instance, priority was given to the implementation of section 4(1)(b) and section 5(1) & (2) by all the public authorities. Once this was operationalised, in certain cases for the willful defaults, the following action was taken:

Number of warnings issued	.. 7
Number of penalties imposed	.. Nil

CHAPTER - V

RECOMMENDATIONS

Action under Section 4(1)(b) and Section 5(1)&(2)

5.1 Though most of the departments have taken action to implement the provisions of Section 4(1)(b) and Section 5(1)&(2), it is imperative that this data is also loaded on to their respective web sites, so as to be available for online dissemination. Further, it has also come to notice of the Commission that several Public Authorities have not prominently displayed the names, telephone numbers and addresses of APIOs, PIOs and First Appellate Authorities on their Notice Boards and this lacuna is causing a genuine hardship to the people who do not know as to whom to apply. Thus, it should be mandatory that the details as mentioned above are prominently displayed on the Notice Board, which itself should be located at the point of ingress and egress. This will enable the people to immediately know as to whom to approach for obtaining the required information.

5.2 It has also been observed by the Commission that some of the Departments have designated very junior level functionaries as PIOs, which severely curtails their ability to obtain the information required within the organization, especially from those Officers who are significantly senior to them. To overcome this constraint, it is essential that PIO should be at a substantially senior level.

Payment of Fee

5.3 Through G.O.Ms.No.454, G.A.(I&PR-II) Dept., dated 13.10.2005, Government have issued orders fixing the fee for submission of the applications and have also prescribed the mode of payment. According to these orders, amount can be collected either in cash or Bankers' Cheque or Demand Draft. It has been noticed by the Commission that considerable difficulties are being faced by the public on this account for a variety of reasons. For the greater convenience of the citizens, it will be better if mode of payment is also extended to acceptance of revenue stamps, Postal Orders or non-judicial stamps.

5.4 While carrying out this amendment, the Government may also take into consideration the felt difficulties of such of the Public Authorities, who are operating at a grass root level and do not have adequate budgetary allocation. The weakness in the current scheme is that, while all the collections are credited to the Government through a challan in a given head of the account, there is no reciprocal allocation to the Public Authorities for meeting the expenses associated with photo copying etc. The problem gets worse when dealing with those requests which require copies of voluminous records and lack of budgetary availability greatly impairs their ability to prompt supply of the data requested. The Government may either find a system, so as to make available the amount collected through challan to the corresponding public authority or if this is likely to be difficult, on the later native, carry out amendment in the rules, duly outsourcing this activity and this agency can collect the “costs” involved direct and the Public Authorities can avail of their services while making the information available.

Awareness

5.5 Section 26 of the Act mandates the Government to:-

(a) develop and organize educational programmes to advance the understanding of the public, in particular of disadvantaged communities as to how to exercise the rights contemplated under this Act;

(b) encourage Public Authorities to participate in the development and organization of programmes referred to in clause (a) and to undertake such programmes themselves;

(c) promote timely and effective dissemination of accurate information by Public Authorities about their activities; and

(d) training State Public Information Officers, as the case may be of Public Authorities and produce relevant training materials for use by the public authorities themselves.

5.6 The Government had to compile in its official language a guide containing such information, in an easily comprehensible form and manner, as may reasonably be required by a person who wishes to exercise any right specified in this Act.

5.7 From the above, it is clear that it is the duty and obligation of the Government to create the necessary awareness both on the supply as well as the demand side. For this, it is essential that adequate budgetary allocations are made for conducting seminars, symposiums, workshops as also for the printing of guides and pamphlets. As visual media has expanded rapidly, efforts should be made to effectively use this media. The Commission has noticed that of all the complaints and appeals received, those obtaining from rural areas are a meagre 11%. This fact in itself indicates that awareness is lacking in the rural areas. It has also been noticed that on the supply side the mindset, attitudes and value systems have not yet percolated to large section of the Public Authorities and an application under the RTI Act is at times perceived with hostility. This is clearly unacceptable and has to change. The Act which has been passed by the Parliament, assented to by the President, and notified has become the law of the land. It is a major step forward in heralding transparency, accountability, openness and Good Governance, and, denotes a paradigm shift to demystify the Government functioning and bring out all the processes involved into the public domain. Thus, it is mandatory for this important item of work that adequate resources are deployed and sufficient funds are made available to inculcate greater awareness, both in the supply as well as the demand side.

Performance of the Officers

5.8 In view of the high profile of the legislation and its crucial role in achieving transparency, accountability, Good Governance and eliminating corruption, it is absolutely important that while apprising the performance of the officers, a specific column is incorporated into the forms of Annual Confidential Reports / Self Assessment Reports prescribed, which should specifically refer to the officers' attitude towards the implementation of Right to Information Act. This will go a long way in conveying a message to the functionaries manning the Public Authorities that the Government are very serious about it in its implementation and a negative approach to the Act can jeopardize the careers and promotional avenues of the officers concerned.

Remuneration to APIOs and PIOs

5.9 RTI Act is a legislation which has very strict time limits for execution and for delays caused, there is a personal liability on the information officer concerned. As the Act gets more acceptances, there will be significant increase in the number of applications received which will have to be processed within the time limit prescribed. This implies a significant increase in the work load on the officers dealing with the subject. Often they have to pursue matters coming in the jurisdiction of their seniors and this may also invite incurring their displeasure / annoyance. As the 2nd appeal with the Commission is concerned, the culpability of the information officer is very clearly defined. Thus, it is clear, that the job of the Information Officer will become a high risk assignment which causes a heavy additional burden and exposes the officers to punitive action while at the same time there is no compensatory monetary relief. In view of the above, it will be in the fitness of the things, if some token honorarium is given to all such officers who are designated as the APIO or PIO.

5.10 As per the practices in vogue, whenever the need arises, all those associated with the election work come under the administrative control of the Election Commission of India. Similarly, all such officers who are designated as Vigilance Officers come under the administrative control of the Vigilance Commissioner. This ensures a certain degree of unified command structure and insulates the field level functionaries from extraneous influences. On similar lines, it is suggested, that all the Information Officers must come under the administrative control of the Information Commission and once designated, they cannot be transferred, changed or altered without the prior permission of the Information Commission.

Allotment of Budget

5.11 Earmarking of funds from the existing budgetary allocations, so as to minimize the budgetary pressures solely falling on the Finance Department, and keeping in view the critical importance of the legislation which aims to create an open, transparent and accountable administration, it is recommended that each department must earmark atleast one percent of its budgetary allocation towards meeting its obligations under this Act.
